

Merry Thursday everyone!

We are all hanging on in there and have had wonderful 'bubble' Christmas parties today which were made complete by the arrival of the REAL Santa this afternoon. He told the children that they had all been extra specially good this year and he bought them all a present. We had to agree with him and I'm sure you will too. The children sang him their Nativity songs and asked him some very searching questions. One little girl also managed to let him know about one thing she had forgotten to put on her list! (It was a lady bird bracelet!)

Talking of the nativity, we are very proud to announce that this is now ready to view! It has proved something of a challenge to find a way to share it as it is quite a large file so that is why it is in two parts! I want to reassure you that when it was filmed we followed all of the procedures required for it to be covid safe. Can I also remind you that this is for family and friends only - please do not post it anywhere publicly.

To access it you need to go to the 'Parents and Chips' page of our website, then go to 'Latest News'. At the bottom of the page you will find the link. We are really proud of the fabulous singing.

I will email again tomorrow to wish you all a happy Christmas - in the meantime enjoy the show!

With love from

Jacky
